Nathalie Bleuzé is an attorney at Davis Graham & Stubbs LLP, where her work focuses primarily on labor and employment issues. She has extensive experience litigating claims relating to state and federal non-discrimination laws, wage and hour rules, trade secrets, commercial torts, and contractual non-competition and other restrictive covenants. She advises clients on employment matters and best practices, including reductions in force, leave, privacy, and accommodations.

Ms. Bleuze has appeared in state and federal court, administrative proceedings (including proceedings involving the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the Colorado Civil Rights Division, and the Occupational Health and Safety Administration), and in arbitration proceedings.

Prior to joining DGS in 2002 as an associate, Ms. Bleuzé worked as a law clerk for the Honorable Robert J. Kapelke of the Colorado Court of Appeals. Later, she also worked as a law clerk for the Honorable Walker D. Miller and, thereafter, for the Honorable Marcia S. Krieger at the U.S. District Court for the District of Colorado. Ms. Bleuzé rejoined DGS in 2012.
